

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to improving tolerance to environmental stress in various organisms, especially higher plants. The cDNA library derived from plants with a high level of stress tolerance such as mangroves is expressed in coliforms with a high level of stress sensitivity, and the clones obtained a high level of stress tolerance are selected. The genes obtained by this method are expressed in various cells, and the transformed cells whose stress tolerance is improved are produced.